

TIRED OF THE FIGHT

The League and Association on the Verge of a Compromise.

PROBABLE RETIREMENT OF THE ASSOCIATION FROM CINCINNATI.

A claim that Milwaukee will take the place of the Queen City—Mr. Von der Ahe denies the deal—St. Louis again victorious—A big purse for Pritchard and Fitzsimmons.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—A special to the WORLD from Cincinnati says that the American Association has shown the white feather that city and that the Cincinnati Association team will be disbanded at the end of the season with the players of the Cincinnati players and all in the dates of the latter club, opening up in St. Louis on Saturday. This programme is the result of a conference held in Louisville between Barnes, Von der Ahe and Phelps. President Kramer knows nothing of it, and it is highly probable that he will resign at once, when he learns it. Kelly will in all probability sign with the Cincinnati League team and act as manager.

President Von der Ahe, when seen in reference to the above telegram, said: "The facts of the case are that the American Association with the Latona races the Cincinnati Association team is to play a number of games against the Latona, the Cincinnati and Washington which they were scheduled at home. No team can draw at Cincinnati against those races, and the chance goes to all of us to all this talk." The Cincinnati club will remain in the Association, however, and will play two more games. Milwaukee will then go to the League. They offered him $5,000 to jump the Association and he refused to do so. Milwaukee's place is not in the Association. If Milwaukee is admitted at all it will be as a new club, and will not play games this fall unless Louisville, which has effected a reorganization, should determine to do so. It is the friends of the Queen City people. My talk with Brush came to naught because he wanted the association to do what he wanted them to do. He told me we would never consent to that. The Association club there is paying expenses now, and all are right.

At the time Mr. Von der Ahe was not willing to admit it, he and Mr. Brush undoubtedly agreed on the condition of a compromise, on the occasion of the Indianapolis man's visit here and these terms merely named ratification by a majority of the members of the Cincinnati club. The agreement probably included the surrender of Cincinnati by the Association, as both clubs are too strong to compete. The Association has applications from Milwaukee and other places for franchises. It is the opinion of Mr. Von der Ahe that a compromise between the League and Association will be effected within a very short time, but he does not see the fight, despite the threats to the contrary.

John T. Brush was still an Indianapolis player at his return to Louisville, but refused to say anything concerning his stop-over at this city and conference with Mr. Von der Ahe, he referred to a reporter. "The Association team, the Red Ball cannot live as it has been carried on this season. The sentiment is growing for a new start and the Association is becoming a necessity. The natural result would be the abandonment of Cincinnati, and upon that basis the League would be successful. I am not saying understand me that the League will abandon Cincinnati. It is the case that the League is a natural favorite, and the club there is almost self-sustaining. With the end of the war a new league is the logical result. Indianapolis naturally be found, and Indianapolis is a natural point for it in case there is a change.

Brush added that he believed that a number of the Association managers are friendly to Indianapolis and the city could come into the Association. He claimed that all the talk of compromise and the costliness of the war came from the Association side, and from the League. Notwithstanding this statement Mr. Brush has paid three visits to this season to St. Louis for the express purpose of endeavoring to effect a compromise with the Association, and also made trips to other places where the Association people have put themselves to the trouble of calling on him. This would be as some of us think at least, was being done by the League. In fact it is the League which is doing nearly all of it, and has been doing it.

True stories about the Association constantly. In his interview at Indianapolis, Mr. Brush said that the Association was in National League territory and would never be surrendered by that organization.

One term of the compromise will be that the American Association will retain its clubs at Boston and Philadelphia and retain the players in their clubs at those cities.

THE execution of the Indian assassins who murdered the English officer at Manilla last March is no doubt a merited punishment for a cowardly crime, but it may be bad politics. The Russian Czar and his Ministers are most attentive readers of Indian news, and will, no doubt, duly exploit this example of British vengeance.

THE action of the Maryland Alliance people in supporting Senator GOVERN for re-election shows good sense and clear insight into their real interests. The Democracy contains all the elements of healthy progress, and only by adopting leaders committed to Democratic principles can the farmers get on the direct route to the relief for which they are now blindly striving.

THE city has freely given the Fair Association many valuable privileges, but when it comes to the city wanting a few animals which the Fair Association has, but

THE Philadelphia Inquirer says that although ninety men out of a hundred Republicans in Pennsylvania are Blaine men the Secretary of State will not stand in the way of the President's aspiration for a second term. If the Pennsylvania proportion is found in the country at large President HARRISON will be a bold man if he goes counter to it. He will consult his own fame by bowing to the unmistakable wishes of the party and stand aside for the man who gave him the nomination in 1882. But does anybody expect him to be so magnanimous?

THE observed facts which led to the Texas-making experiment now going on in Texas have not been generalized into a theory and very little, if anything, is known of the causal relation between great explosions and precipitation of moisture. But that there is such a relation seems to be pretty well established by the battle record of the Mexican and civil wars. Whether the knowledge can be put to practical use is yet to be determined by results more conclusive than the Texas experiment has produced.

THE failure of the Fair Grounds directors to make good the promise to give the city their collection of docile animals will not defeat the plan to transfer them to Forest Park and lay the foundation for a fine public zoological garden. This excellent project has the support of public-spirited citizens who have determined to accomplish it, and the conduct of the opposing directors will have no other effect except to place them in a bad light before the people of St. Louis.

NOWTHERSTANDING the supposed political character of the new weather chief's appointment Prof. HARRINGTON has declared himself emphatically in favor of the principles of civil service reform, and would extend the present rules practically over the entire service. It remains to be seen whether he can withstand the attempt which will surely be made to turn his bureau into a nest of political workers.

SENATOR QUAY says that he would vote to seat BRUCE in case of a contest over his election. He recognizes BRUCE's value to the Republicans as an example of dangerous Democracy.

The thief claiming to represent a lottery company, who chloroformed and robbed Banker PRAYOR of Memphis, although he differed in method, yet acted in harmony with the object of the lottery business.

SENATOR CARLISLE is reported as saying that the next Congress will probably pass a free coinage bill, and that President HARRISON will veto it. Nothing could please the President more than such an opportunity to divert attention from the main issue.

LIBERTY is not full and complete unless it secures freedom to trade in any market. The discriminating tariff and the commercial decree are the fit companions of the monster armament as the instruments of greedy absolutism and paternal tyranny for the oppression of the people.

The revelations of corruption among Canadian officials is a severe blow to English self-satisfaction and pharisaism. If the Canadian exposures induce the English people to turn the light inward and search their own hearts they will be of great value in the cause of enlightened morality.

THE Philadelphia Inquirer says that although ninety men out of a hundred Republicans in Pennsylvania are Blaine men the Secretary of State will not stand in the way of the President's aspiration for a second term. If the Pennsylvania proportion is found in the country at large President HARRISON will be a bold man if he goes counter to it. He will consult his own fame by bowing to the unmistakable wishes of the party and stand aside for the man who gave him the nomination in 1882. But does anybody expect him to be so magnanimous?

THE observed facts which led to the Texas-making experiment now going on in Texas have not been generalized into a theory and very little, if anything, is known of the causal relation between great explosions and precipitation of moisture. But that there is such a relation seems to be pretty well established by the battle record of the Mexican and civil wars. Whether the knowledge can be put to practical use is yet to be determined by results more conclusive than the Texas experiment has produced.

JERSEY FARMERS AS FIGHTERS.

They Fill Up on Beer and Have Several Rows at a Picnic.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 14.—The South Jersey farmers, with their families and friends, 5,000 or all, held their annual reunion at Pennsville, N. J., Wednesday. The number of spectators was augmented by several hundred persons from Philadelphia and 100 from Newcastle. When all the South Jersey farmers and their families got together they numbered 20,000. It was expected that nearly that number would attend. The weather was fine, the morning clear, and those who would have driven from the lower districts stayed at home. The men of the various towns and other rural towns were largely represented in the big crowd. The exercises of the 500 men for rows were followed freely down the farmers' throats. The dinner hour, with its abundance of good things, was well under way when the first gun was fired. It was the signal to start a general fight. At 11 o'clock a salvo was fired over the heads of the youth. A big mob surged around the boys, and several fights were started. In an hour and a half, and before the sun had gone down, the Delaware River, on which Pennsville lies, they fought with their fists and bruised each other's faces. They are armed themselves with the carriage whips and used the butts on each other. In the heat of the struggle one of the leaders was knocked down and kicked in the head. He is a citizen of New Jersey, and his record is as follows: Two days ago he had badly injured that the Pennsville physicians had their hands full in dressing their wounds. It was impossible to get the number of the men who were present, so we can only guess. When masters seemed to have quieted a Pennsylvania farmer, he offered $20 to a South Jersey farmer, and told him to finish. They began to fight again. The farmers who live near the banks of the river, Jersey fought for them, and this probably accounts for the second fight. A New castle man, who was a member of the party, was pursued by part of the mob. They ran up the shore two miles. As he has not returned it is rumored that he met with foul play.

MRS. HANNAH BOND.

An Effort to Compromise Her Claims Against Her Husband's Property.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Mrs. Hannah Bond, who made herself famous two years ago by asserting that her husband had been engaged to slay Miss Russell, has again come into notice. The company, which has again been brought into notice by the arrival in town of E. C. Bell, a State Senator from Indiana, who is in search of her. He is acting in behalf of her husband's family, and wants to make a compromise with her by which she shall relinquish all claim to her husband's property. Mrs. Bond is now actually two years ago, just at the end of the run of "The Brigands" at the Casino, that Mrs. Bond made her escape, and since then she has been in the place of Miss Russell. Her statement was promptly denied by the managers of the Casino, however. The company was then about to start for Boston and she said that she was to join it in New York. She did not leave the Casino last night in search of information about Mrs. Bond. It is thought if he can find her he will be successful in arranging the compromise that he desires.

INDIANA'S TAX LAW.

The Bankers of the Hoosier State to Resist Its Enforcement.

INDIANA'S TAXES.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 14.—The bankers of Indiana have announced their determination to fight the proposed effort of the State Board of Tax Commissioners to compel them to expose the accounts of their depositors. One banker said: "A merchant may have a large balance on deposit, but he may not cash his check for two-thirds of the amount, but as we have not received the check he is credited with the full amount." Another said: "I propose to tax him. He may purchase a negotiable certificate of deposit, assign the next day, and when it matures, he will cash it, and still our books will show that man credited with the certificate. Bankers are justified in resisting."

As the officers of all the 551 banks of Indiana have been cited to appear before the board and answer for their conduct, it is evident a test case will be made up at once and decided as soon as possible. It is claimed by the bankers that the proposed law is in conflict with the national banking act, and furthermore, that a compliance with it would ruin many of the smaller banks. No one can answer to a question as to how it would do this, it was replied. "Because just as the bankers are in the habit of underwriting their deposits, so are they giving them in full will in the next day, and covering Miller with his fiancée on Pennsylvania Avenue. He approached the two, and covering Miller with his fiancée, he was further informed that Miller had reformed and again occupied a creditable standing in the business world, and that he had been engaged to marry him. He did not think that a man with so unsavory a record should form an alliance with his cultivated and well-born sister and he immediately telegraphed her as follows:

"From the man of his escape, he gained the sobriquet of 'shoe-box' Miller, by which he is still remembered. Mr. Miller was also to the Misses Russell, who had been with him. He was further informed, however, in justification of Miller, that the latter had reformed and again occupied a creditable standing in the business world, and that he had been engaged to marry him. He did not think that a man with so unsavory a record should form an alliance with his cultivated and well-born sister and he immediately telegraphed her as follows:

"Miller is a noted crook, bigamist and scoundrel."

The dispatch was sent to Miss Mosby at Warrenton, which is scarcely an hour's ride from St. Louis, and she was ready and willing to receive it. Beverly Mosby was ready and willing to receive it the next day and encountered his sister and her fiancée on Pennsylvania Avenue. He approached the two, and covering Miller with his fiancée, he was further informed that Miller had reformed and again occupied a creditable standing in the business world, and that he had been engaged to marry him. He did not think that a man with so unsavory a record should form an alliance with his cultivated and well-born sister and he immediately telegraphed her as follows:

"Miller is a noted crook, bigamist and scoundrel."
